Andrew Berry heads up the team in the transactional department at Payne Hicks Beach. It's been a strong year for the team: 'Our department continues to work overtime to meet the demand, and buyers are taking advantage of the uncertainty,' he says. 'They take a longer term view; it's a wonderful time for them to buy.' The firm has a compelling client base of entrepreneurs and wealthy individuals, acting on PCL, landed estates, and even hotels transactions. Berry evidently relishes the current environment: 'It's one of the best cities in the world; I don't see other cities competing. Property is an illiquid asset. In the long run fundamentals will work in their favour.'
