

Coram's Fields

22 April 2015

On the evening of 21 April 2015 the firm hosted a workshop for young people participating in the Coram's Fields Employability project. Ten members of Payne Hicks Beach participated and gave inspiring talks about their careers at Payne Hicks Beach. They included not only Emily Gailey, a trainee, and Emily Foy, a solicitor in the Family department, who talked about training as a solicitor, but also a number of members of the support staff, who have developed their careers at the firm in a variety of departments, including IT, Marketing, Secretarial and in the Trust department. We hope to develop this initiative by extending work experience opportunities to those participating in the project, and assisting with a review of CVs and interview practice.
