

Hybrid working and the bumpy road firms are facing

29 March 2021

Comments by Kim Crangle, Associate in the Employment department at Payne Hicks Beach, on some of the legal challenges employers face as they prepare to welcome their workforce back to the office now solid progress is being made on vaccinations, first published in Wealth briefing online on 25 March 2021 and reproduced with kind permission.

Kim discusses some of the legal challenges employers face they prepare to welcome their workforce back to the office. "We have already seen an increase in claims about working time, deductions from salaries, and redundancy." She continues: "It is not clear yet what age groups have brought the claims, but it may well be that young people most affected by job losses in the pandemic are the majority."

https://www.wealthbriefing.com/html/article.php?id=190600&page=1#.YFxVsa_7SM8

Kim is an employment solicitor and part of our experienced Employment department that specialises in all aspects of employment law, from appointment to dismissal and advising both employers and employees. The team has valuable insight into the employment relationship and the need to provide effective, commercial, and imaginative solutions. alongside providing the highest degree of discretion, support and responsiveness to achieve agreed objectives for their clients.

For further information, please contact Kim Crangle by email or alternatively call on 020 7465 4300
