14 May 2019

Robert Brodrick, Partner in the Private Client department at Payne Hicks Beach attended the latest Spear's Breakfast Briefing which tackled the Turks and Caicos – what it is, how it is changing, and why UHNWs should pay attention.

Robert was amongst industry leaders from some of London's top family offices, banks, and private client firms who came together at the Spear's breakfast briefing at the Mandarin Oriental Hyde Park on 3 April 2019 for a presentation hosted by Invest Turks and Caicos discussing the area's opportunities for UHNW investors.

Turks and Caicos – just 75 minutes from Miami and covering 193 square miles of the Atlantic – is one of the fastest growing UHNW tourist destinations in the world. Home to 36,000 full-time residents, it welcomes around 1.3 million tourists a year and is a proud winner of TripAdvisor's 'best beach in the world' accolade.

Temperatures reach a balmy average of 30-32C from June to October, and it punches above its weight for airlift: around 90 flights a week run through its airports, of which 40 per cent come from private jets.
